The legal implications of developments in Information and Communications Technology are becoming ever more significant. No country or region and few individuals are immune to the challenges posed by technology.

This two day seminar will consider recent developments in fields such as:

- e-commerce
- Internet regulation
- Computer related crime
- Telecommunications regulation
- Individual and corporate privacy on the Internet
- Intellectual property law

This seminar will be led by Professor Ian Lloyd. Ian is a director of the UKTA and is Senior Research Fellow in the Institute for Law and the Web at the University of Southampton. Ian is author of Information Technology Law and (together with Professor David Mellor) Telecommunications Law which is published by Oxford University Press.

To book your place please contact:

Melody Parkes - UKTA – melody.parkes@ukta.co.uk